Business, in the company's words

opening of Item 1 of the 10-K received Feb 24, 2026

- Intellectual Property. As the patents for a product expire, competitors may begin to introduce generic or other alternatives, and as a result, we may face competition from lower-priced alternatives to many of our products. Further, generic competitors have sold, and could in the future attempt to market and/or sell, competing products before our patent rights expire. For example, in January 2026, a competitor began selling a generic product competitive to our Seresto collar in the U.S., more than a year before certain relevant patent rights expire.
