At Elutia, our mission is to humanize medicine so that patients can thrive without compromise. We develop proprietary drug-eluting biomatrix products for use in surgical reconstruction and related applications. These products are designed to improve the interaction between implanted medical devices and patients. Our focus is on addressing unmet medical needs and reducing complications associated with surgery, including infection, migration, erosion, implant rejection, and fibrosis. Our operations span research and development through the commercial distribution of biologic matrix products used in plastic and reconstructive surgery.
